Echlemann, German [illegible] in the District of Ponce, Porto Rico, says of the report about the cession of that Island to Germany that it must have originated among the enemies of Bismarck at Fort Rich. Local papers also denied any truth in it. There was considerable dissatisfaction on the Island however owing to the troubled condition of affairs in Spain and the fact that all the important officers are Spaniards.

A BOY BITTEN BY A RATTLESNAKE.

[Stockton Independent, September 4.]

Sunday afternoon a week ago a little boy aged eight years, son of William A. Morrison, who resides about a mile from Knight's Ferry was bitten on the finger by a rattlesnake. It appears that a kitten discovered the snake and was frolicking around the reptile which made a noise with its rattles that attracted the attention of the little fellow, who ventured too near. As soon as it was discovered that the child had been bitten the father applied his lips to the wound and sucked for a time as strongly as he could, and then made all possible haste to the office of Dr. Wilhite, at Knight's Ferry, directing the boy to keep sucking the wound as much as possible while on the way from his home to the physician's office. Before the little fellow reached Knight's Ferry he had drank three half pints of whisky, and after reaching that place another half pint was given him, making in all about a quart of whisky which he drank without exhibiting the slightest symptoms of intoxication. The physician bandaged the arm from the shoulder to the wrist, and saturated the bandage with ammonia so strongly that blisters were raised on the flesh. Shortly afterward the boy's uneasiness caused by the blisters induced the doctor to slacken the bandage and shortly afterwards a slight swelling was observed on the side of the breast near the shoulder. This was suddenly checked by an application of iodine. The action of the poison was speedily checked and now the boy is running about at play. The hand is badly discolored however, and it is surmised that it may possibly wither. The snake which had eleven rattles was killed by Mr. Morrison immediately after his little son was bitten.

How It Was Done.—Kellogg to Grant: "Send some Federal bayonets to my assistance or I'm a goner."

Grant to Kellogg: "I invoke the aid and co-operation of all good citizens to keep the peace."

Fred Ogden to Kellogg: "Bill, surrender!"

Kellogg to the Federal Bayonets: "Shall I?"

The Federal bayonets to Kellogg: "Do as you please, Bill; it's no concern of ours; we're only here to see fair play."

Kellogg (solus):

Farewell, a long farewell to all my greatness.
This is the state of man: to-day he puts forth
The tender leaves of hope, to-morrow blossoms
And bears his blushing honors thick upon him;
The third day comes a frost, a killing frost,
And nips his bud.

Mr. FIDLER moved to reject the bill. The motion was lost.

Mr. ROE moved to print 100 copies of H. B. No. 31. Messrs. Reed, Galloway, Gilbert and Florence opposed the motion as involving a needless expense, the bill being very long and purely local in its nature. Mr. Chambers advocated the motion. The motion failed.

The bill is the same in substance as that introduced in the Senate on Wednesday, the contents of which were given in the Senate report at that time.

Mr. REED suggested that the Special Committee to whom had been referred the petitions on the subject of temperance had had the matter under consideration and had prepared a bill containing provisions almost identical with that which had just been read. He thought therefore it would be well to defer the printing until the Committee should present their report. The motion was withdrawn.

Mr. GEARIN wanted to know the object of that resolution. He thought a committee for a similar purpose had already been appointed.

Mr. GILBERT said the object was that the House might be put in possession of the facts as they exist. It was known to every member of this House that it has been heralded through the papers of the State that money has been paid out without authority of law. It has been announced from the stump and even upon the floor of the other House. It is the intention of this resolution to investigate the facts in relation to these charges.

Mr. STOTT thought the committee already appointed might do this work. Such a committee as the resolution contemplated was superfluous.

The resolution was adopted—ayes 54, nays 1, Shelton of Linn voting no.

Mr. FLORENCE moved to reconsider the vote by which the resolution was adopted. Lost.

The Committee has ordered me to produce the books, records and vouchers before them in Patton's building but a few steps from my office. The books consist of seventeen volumes and the papers, vouchers &c. are bulky and voluminous. I am under bonds of $10,000 for the safe keeping of all this property of the State and do not desire to have it placed in the keeping of a person in whom I have no confidence. My predecessor in office, Maj. M. P. Berry, informed me that when his accounts were undergoing investigation, being taken out of his custody, he found important papers and vouchers were lost. I have therefore deemed it my duty to my sureties to decline to deliver this property out of my own care and keeping and have tendered the full inspection and examination of them at my own office, which is a convenient place. I will however cheerfully obey the order of the Senate and House in the premises, protesting that in seeking the place as clerk of said committee Patton has sought my personal injury. I would have been satisfied if any impartial and competent man had been selected by the committee as clerk, as I am confident all my accounts will be found complete and satisfactory. I have the honor to remain respectfully your obedient servant,

W. H. WATKINDS,
Supt. Oregon State Penitentiary.

SALEM, Sept. 23, 1874.

On motion of Mr. STEEN the correspondence that had passed between Mr. Watkinds and the committee was read to the House. It threw no light on the matter further than is contained in Mr. Watkinds' communication to the House.

On motion of Mr. JOHNSON Mr. Watkinds' letter was laid on the table.

THE TEMPERANCE QUESTION.

Mr. REED of Marion from Special Committee on Temperance, reported that the committee to whom had been referred the petition praying for the enactment of a local option or civil damage law had had the matter under consideration and had drawn up a bill answering to the prayer of the petitioners which was recommended for passage.

On motion of Mr. GALLOWAY the rules were suspended and the bill was read first time by title as follows:

H. B. No. [illegible]—A bill to provide for the evils resulting from the sale of intoxicating liquors. Two hundred copies of the bill were ordered printed.

REPORT ON MILEAGE.

Mr. RICHARDSON presented the report of the Committee on Mileage and on motion of Mr. RIDDLE it was referred back for correction with leave to report at any time.

THE STATE PRINTER.

Mr. GALLOWAY introduced the following resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Printing be instructed to prepare and report a bill prescribing the duties and fixing the compensation of the State Printer and providing for the distribution of the laws and journals.

On motion of MR. CHAMBERS the resolution was adopted.

A motion to reconsider the vote by which the recommendation to award per diem and mileage to Gilbert Reynolds, late contestant from Grant county, was indefinitely postponed was laid on the table.

Leave of absence was granted until Thursday next to Mr. Jackson of Washington and until Tuesday next to Mr. Laughlin of Yamhill.

The House then adjourned until Monday next at 1 P. M.

Morrissey's New Club House.—John Morrissey is negotiating for the purchase of a handsome residence on Capitol Hill near the Capitol. The tenement is surrounded by six acres of ground. Morrissey's intention in becoming the purchaser is to fit it up as a first class club-house after the manner of his famous place at Saratoga. It is his intention to keep it open only during the Congressional season.

Nine acres of a field of wheat on Mr. S. G. Reed's farm near Amity yielded 64 bushels to the acre. The entire field has been spoken of by those who have noticed the excellent crop while it was growing and undoubtedly it would show one of the best average yields yet mentioned if the figures were known.

OREGON.

Silverton wants to be incorporated. Brownsville ditto.

More dwelling houses are wanted in Corvallis and more people to dwell.

Bishop Pierce dedicated the new Southern Church at Tangent last Sabbath.

A Corvallis firm has 60,000 bushels of wheat in their warehouses at that place.

The machinery for the new flouring mill at Corvallis has arrived at its destination.

A gentleman living up near Lebanon killed a large mountain sheep in that vicinity last Saturday.

At the dedication of the new M. E. Church South at Tangent the balance due on the cost of erecting the building—some $700—was subscribed.

There are still plenty of antelope in the region about Camp Polk, about 100 miles from Albany, out on the Willamette Valley and Cascade Mountain road.

On Sunday last the Corvallis M. E. Sunday school completed its organization by the election of J. W. Williams Secretary, and Master Orville E. Carter, Librarian.

Henry Clifton, who was in the Modoc war in 1873, in Capt. Jesse Walker's company, will confer a favor by sending his address to the Oregon City Enterprise office.

The Odd Fellows at Brownsville dedicate their fine hall on the 20th of next month, when a grand old time will be had. A large attendance may be expected.

Mr. F. B. James, of Ochoco, says they are getting along finely over in that valley, having harvested large crops of wheat, for which they find a ready market at $1 per bushel.

A man coming into Albany found a cow by the roadside with a three tined pitchfork sticking in her side. The instrument was taken out, but it was thought the animal would die. Such a fiendish trick deserves about a year in the State Prison.

The Corvallis Gazette learns that a train of ten wagons arrived in Benton county on Friday last, from Missouri, coming into this valley by way of the Willamette Valley and Cascade mountain wagon road. There were about thirty five persons in the train.

Later examinations have proven that the burglars who went through Bangasser & Delschneider's store at McMinnville relieved it of about $360 worth of goods instead of $40 worth. They took boots, and ladies shoes by the box, tobacco in the same quantity, jack knives by the dozen, cassimeres and delaines by the bolt and other things too numerous to mention.

On Saturday last while James Butler and wife of Umatilla county were going down a hill near "Red" Wells' farm in Benton Co., where they were visiting, a horse they were leading behind the wagon pulled back, throwing the vehicle off the grade and causing it to capsize. Mr. Butler was thrown violently out, sustaining a dislocation of the shoulder and other bruises. Mrs. Butler fell upon her husband and escaped unhurt.

Mr. Jacobs, living in the vicinity of the Mountain House postoffice, Yamhill county, lost a fine horse one day last week, by its getting punctured with a piece of fence rail. He was driving his team heavily loaded upon a bridge and at the end of the bridge there had been placed some rails to fill up a place cut out by wagon wheels. While passing over these rails one of them flew up striking the horse, and inflicting a wound from which it bled to death in fifteen minutes.

A young lady on the train waved her handkerchief at the devil in the Oregon City Enterprise office and the young imp has been nearly crazy ever since. He has written her name on the snow white walls of the office from floor to ceiling and on every blank sheet of paper in the sanctum and, on being reprimanded, shied a shooting stick at the foreman. He has pied a column of type and stood on his head in the ink keg, at the same time trying to balance a galley of live matter on each foot.

Daniel Clark, Master of the State Grange has been ordered to appoint meetings through a portion of the valley for the purpose of laying before the members some matters of vital interest to the Order at large and in this valley in particular and announces that he will hold meetings as follows: Junction, Monday, Sept. 28th, 2 P. M.; Eugene, Tuesday, 29th, 2 P. M.; Siuslaw, Wednesday, 30th, 2 P. M.; Cresswell, Thursday, October 1st, after arrival of northern train; Cottage Grove, Friday, 2d, after arrival of northern train; Harrisburg, Saturday, 3d, after arrival of southern train; Shedd's, Monday, 5th, after arrival of southern train.

The Yamhill Reporter tells of a bit of scrimmage which happened near McMinnville on Monday, September 21st, in this wise: Capt. Lamson, ex County Clerk, purchased a farm from Dr. A. Smith, some months since, and at the time of purchase gave Smith a lease of the premises until the 1st of December next. Recently, however, Smith agreed, in consideration of a certain sum of money, to give Lamson possession on the 20th instant, which agreement he fulfilled, and Capt. Lamson was, as he supposed, in peaceable possession of his house and farm, having already taken a good share of his goods upon the premises. But now comes Smith's mother and other relatives and claim a home there. While Mr. Lamson and two men were in the house they were assaulted by four or five men who came with the avowed purpose of ejecting Lamson from his house. Quite a fight ensued, in which one of the men with Lamson was knocked down with a cane and severely bruised, and after a desperate struggle Lamson was put out of the house and compelled to leave the place. It seems that a woman or two figured in the assault, and that one of them, Mrs. Armstrong, got handled pretty roughly. Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Smith, together with several men, were arrested last Tuesday on the complaint of Mr. C. P. Royal and Mr. Miller, on charge of assault. They were taken before Justice Olds at St. Joe and gave bonds to appear for trial on Thursday next at 11 o'clock A. M. The examination will be held at St. Joe.

The Statesman thinks the ticket nominated by the Democrats in Walla Walla is very weak, and that if the reformers put up good men they will carry the election.

The Salt Lake Tribune says: "The persuasive revolver was used on the head of a polygamous scoundrel the other day in one of the lower wards by his first wife, who had toiled through life with him, raised his family of children, and helped to accumulate the property to which he brought a second to divide it with. It was more than her womanly nature could stand, and she made the old man travel, leaving behind him a distracted family."

The special exploring party under the immediate direction of Prof. Hayden, has been making a careful detailed study of the topographical and geological features of the Elk Mountains, one of the most remarkable and peculiar ranges on our continent. The survey of the east side of the range was completed, when the work was interrupted by the severe and possibly fatal illness of one of the younger members of the party, a son of Hon. J. P. C. Shanks, member of Congress from Indiana.

SATURDAY MORNING SEPT 26 1874

WHY IS IT?

Our evening cotemporary cannot see how the people of the South or any part of them, are in any way concerned in or responsible for the murderous outbreaks which have been of frequent occurrence during the past four months. It sees them oppressed by 'scalawags and carpet baggers,' despoiled of their property by unjust taxation and governed by officers in the choice of whom they had no voice. It believes, too, that whenever a majority of the people of any State tire of their rulers, or become persuaded that they hold office illegally, it is right and proper that they (the people) should rise in their strength, drive the usurper from position and place in their position the men whom they have elected. This is excellent doctrine for a Mexican State. It will hardly do for a law loving sober people. When the News undertakes to justify the recent insurrection in New Orleans it places itself squarely in opposition to the best judgment of thinking men, regardless of party, in every part of the United States. Armed revolt against authorities recognized by the General Government cannot be tolerated unless it be shown that all peaceable remedies have failed. The right of revolution cannot be denied. It is a right above all governments and laws, but it is not a right which can find warrant for its exercise in anything but despotic oppression against which all peaceable remedies are powerless.

We strove yesterday to show that it was a piece of injustice to hold the entire South responsible for outrages committed in and confined to a few parishes, that we could not believe that the people of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi approve of the scandalous outrages which have been committed in those States by the White League and kindred organizations, that while it was indisputable that there is much truth in the reports of these excesses, it is still true that the facts are wrongfully exaggerated and distorted. The News is not content with a fair, candid statement of this nature. So it seeks to exonerate the criminals while it does not deny the crimes. It reserves all its wrath for the "scalawags and carpet baggers." Now isn't it a little singular that in these massacres and murders some ignorant defenseless negro is always the victim—that none of the obnoxious 'scalawags' are ever killed? In the Coushatta [illegible] six or eight parish and county officers were murdered in cold blood but as we have said, the White Leaguers usually choose some "nigger" for a victim. Why is it?

A Boston correspondent says that last spring, when Gen Butler's physicians ordered him to abstain from hard work, and when he really contemplated quitting public life he met Gen Coggswell, one of his present opponents, in Salem one day, and patting him on the back as a fond father would a promising son informed him that he (B F B) would not again be a candidate bade him gird up his loins and commence work in ample season assuring him that he should have his heartiest support. The young man was highly delighted. He went to work, canvassed industriously and led an exemplary life. Suddenly it was announced that the hero of Fort Fisher would be a candidate. Coggswell sought an explanation and got it. Gen Butler explained that he felt better and on looking over the whole field he had concluded that Coggswell ought to withdraw! Which is why we remark that for ways that are dark, the Essex individual is peculiar.

The New York Tribune reviews its charges against Senator Carpenter and says if he was not guilty of grossly immoral and indecent conduct at Long Branch, last summer the Senator could have proven his innocence. While Mr Carpenter's friends have published numerous indignant denials they have thus far failed to prove by the proprietor of the West End Hotel that the Senator was not turned away from that hotel on account of his lewd associations. The Tribune thinks the next Legislature in Wisconsin will indicate the truthfulness of its charges.

On the 16th inst. the Episcopal Convention of the Diocese of Illinois elected Dr George F Seymour bishop of Illinois, to succeed Bishop Whitehouse, deceased. Dr Seymour is Professor of Theological History in the General Theological Seminary of New York. He is 44 years of age, is possessed of great wealth most of which he has inherited and is classed as a Ritualist. The Low Church opposition was strong, the vote of the laity being ayes 32, noes 25. The clerical vote was: Seymour 34, others 26.

The Chicago Times is not an admirer of James Parton. Parton says the world is in a better way than it has ever been before and attributes the improvement to the fact that Prof Tyndall has not been burned at the stake for declaring as he did at Belfast recently that there is no God. The Times is of the same opinion with Parton but bases its conclusion on the fact that Parton has not been burned at the stake for bringing into existence so many literary monstrosities.

Tumultuous horror brooded o'er Shepherd's van, presaging wrath to Poland and to Dan—a (That is rather weak but it will have to do.) Poland suffered but the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia report that they have failed to find a bill in the case of Charles A Dana, who charged the 'Boss with criminal libel in the Sun of June 25th 1874.

Fred Douglass newspaper enterprise is in a bad way. Some time ago his landlord entered suit for money due for rent and judgment and execution were ordered. A few days since Douglass got an order against the Marshall of the District to prevent him from seizing the office presses and type.

Eldredge a Democratic salary grabbing Congressman in Wisconsin is sitting on the ragged edge of despair. His constituents have invited him to step down and out. Not even Matt Carpenter who worked for him with might and main, could save him.

Groundswell in Maine. Of 31 Senators chosen Sept 14 the Democrats elected one. That forlorn hope will be terrible lonesome. Nevertheless, Crow Chapman Crow!

It is said that ex Governor Pinchback, of Louisiana is a speaker of surpassing eloquence and force. He is now speaking in Indiana, where he draws immense audiences.

The St Louis Republican refuses to give its support to part of the Bourbon ticket in Missouri.

FROM THE CAPITAL.

SALEM Sept 25 1874.

By this time the manner of men composing the Legislature with special regard to their abilities and dispositions in the position they occupy can be spoken of with some degree of certainty. The fuss and confusion incident to the organization and naturally attending the movements of the body for the first few days have been exchanged for something like order, and the people's representatives are coming down to

SOLID WORK.

And it is pleasant to record the generally expressed opinion that the session will be quite as satisfactory to those who wish only for the best interests of the people at large as any of its predecessors and more so than most of them. There is very little of partisan purpose manifest and very little of party spirit exhibited. Scarcely ever does there occur a vote in which the most careful observer could tell from the answers of members at roll call to which of the three parties they belong. Do not infer from this that there is any want of purpose among the members to remain pretty close alongside their respective party organizations. On the other hand they seem quite anxious to set their particular parties in the best light before the country but nearly all appear to agree that the way to accomplish it is to assist in good legislation without reference to party. They are right. The question is will they continue in this way of well doing or will they allow themselves to be provoked or otherwise tempted to throw away their opportunities in struggles for party advantage? Time will tell and not a long time at that.

THE RAILWAY BILLS.

To-day Mr Reed of Marion introduced in the House the bill to encourage the construction of the Oregon Central Pacific Railway—Pengra's road. It is the same as the bill introduced in the Senate and which has had its second reading and is in the hands of the standing Committee on Railways. I send down a down a copy of this bill for publication. No opposition has yet been shown to the measure and as its friends are friendly to the Salt Lake enterprise considering the two as in no way rival schemes it is probable there will be no serious opposition at all.

The Portland and Salt Lake interests have not yet been fully arranged among the promoters of the two parties that are working on that line. It is greatly to be hoped they will come to some satisfactory understanding so there may be a united push for the success of the road. The delegations from east of the mountains, and from Multnomah county are specially anxious to have all prior questions amicably settled, and to see unity of plan and purpose. I heard one member say to-day he was disposed to suggest to the members most directly interested that they get together and determine which Company they would support and then notify the parties that they had settled the controversy themselves and did not intend to have it opened again. If worst comes to worst, I hope they will take that course but as yet there appears to be no great amount of feeling among the parties and I think it altogether likely an amicable adjustment will be reached without resorting to extreme measures.

THE DRUMMERS.

This morning, Mr Stott of Multnomah introduced a bill to license persons selling goods by sample. It is understood the object of the measure is to restrain the practice of selling foreign goods in the State through traveling agents or drummers, to the detriment of our own merchants. It is said there will be a hard fight made against the bill. I do not know who will fight it.

ANOTHER EXCELLENT BILL.

In the Senate, Mr Dolph introduced a bill to encourage the investment of foreign capital in this State. That is not the title but it is the real meaning of the bill. It provides that foreign corporations upon filing their articles of incorporation or charters in this State shall have all the rights privileges and powers possessed by domestic corporations. The bill had been prepared at the instance of certain persons now engaged in business with foreign capital here and who are of opinion that its passage will add very materially in the development of our State. There ought to be no opposition to it. The idea of excluding aliens from the property rights of citizens is worn out.

ETC.

Some very lively correspondence has been passing between Watkinds Superintendent of the Penitentiary and the Joint Committee appointed to examine his books. It seems the Committee appointed as their clerk Mr D. McF Patton, a bitter personal enemy of Watkinds. The two have not spoken to each other for some years. Watkinds now protests against surrendering his books to Patton, on the ground that there is danger of them being spirited away or falsified. He is willing to afford the committee every facility for examining the books short of surrendering them into Patton's custody, and says he will give them up to any other person no matter of what party whom the committee may appoint in the place of Patton. Of course Patton would not steal the books and it is hardly likely Watkinds really fears such a thing. Watkinds should give up the books at once. That however is not equivalent to saying that Mr Patton has showed a very delicate sense of honor in accepting the position under the circumstances.

This forenoon the noisy Senator from Multnomah Hon J N Dolph got another punch that exhibited him in the position of a person with another part of his body higher than his head. On a motion to print a bill to appropriate moneys to aid in securing immigration Dolph who embraces every opportunity to 'talk with his mouth' though he seldom has anything to say took occasion to make a furious speech in which he alluded to the extravagance of the Capitol Commissioners in the discharge of their trust. On his taking his seat Townsend, of Yamhill, replied briefly, calling the attention of the Senate to the fact that the Senator from Multnomah had been a member of the Senate when the law was passed under which the Capitol Commissioners had acted and no one doubted his competency to have seen to it that they were placed under proper restrictions and yet he had wholly neglected to do so. This went home as why should it not? The Senator from Multnomah when he looked round through the Chamber and the lobby as his peculiar habit is, to see how the crowd admired him saw a picture he had not asked for.

Which reminds me that notwithstanding my reassertion of the correctness of my report of his remarks and his overthrow in his first engagement with Bristow and notwithstanding his threat that a repetition of that truth would be the signal for his moving to expel the OREGONIAN reporter from the Senate the noble Senator has not come to the centre. He is evidently better adapted to taking men's scalps in their absence than in their presence. Talk is talk, but it takes nerve to scalp people.

To morrow the members or as many of them as feel so inclined will visit Dr Hawthorne's Insane Asylum. It is to be hoped they will all return in due time 'clothed and in their right minds.'

H.

The Chicago Times puts the responsibility for the present condition of Louisiana just where it belongs. It says:

By some occult maneuver of Omnipotence Carpenter happened to take the respectable side of the case and argued vigorously in favor of a new election and the repudiation of the Pinchback Durell-Kellogg ring. But Morton hectored him in his address and lobbied against him so that no vote was reached. The Indiana obstinate was determined that the carpet baggers, rill tails should maintain their clutch on Louisiana and he won. McCreery of Kentucky succeeding in squeezing an hour of the Senate's time one day which he devoted to a skinning of Morton and the Louisiana ruffians. His address was the gem of the session—Sumner that night spoke of it as a marvellous bit of oratory—but it carried no practical weight against the two thirds radical majority in the Senate. Morton succeeded in keeping his scurvy proteges at the helm in Louisiana. In assigning the blame for the present reign of horror in that State Oliver P Morton must come in for a generous share of the execration.

CITY.

TO ENTER SCHOOL.—Among those who took their departure on the last [illegible] for San Francisco appear the names of [illegible] Bush and Miss Jennie Gray, of [illegible] ters of Hon Asahel Bush, the [illegible] banker, and G W Gray, Esq.; also the name of Miss Agnes R Lowndsale, [illegible] of Mr J P O Lowndsale, of Portland. These young ladies are on the way to Oakland, California, where they will enter the Mills [illegible] inary, an institution of learning which ranks deservedly high on the coast. They will probably remain there several years, as they propose to graduate with the high[illegible] honors of the institution. The warmest wishes of a host of friends accompany these young ladies.

THE GREAT DAY OF ATONEMENT.—This memorable day celebrated by the Israelites for thousands of years, is a prophecy of the ingathering of the Gentiles. It will usher in the jubilee of the world of mankind. [illegible] day Dr Lindsley announced that he would explain this to-morrow evening in his own pulpit. We suppose our fellow-[illegible] of Hebrew lineage will be glad to hear a [illegible] on this subject from a Gentile standpoint and we are informed that the preacher [illegible] a hearty invitation to them to come and [illegible] him.

LAMP CHIMNEYS.—Mr Moses [illegible] has just received by the last steamer a lot of "[illegible] Fire Proof" lamp chimneys, which are the first of the kind ever brought to Portland. Instead of being cut like the [illegible] glass chimney they are moulded. Their excellence consists in the [illegible]ness and flexibility of the chimney. They are very thick, but as transparent as possible, and when struck sharply with a knife, ring like a [illegible]. In appearances the Dithridge lamp [illegible] superior to any other in use.

DIVINE SERVICE.—There will be divine service held on Sunday at the Ch[illegible] east corner of Taylor and Fifth st[illegible] by the Rev Dr John Gantenbein. [illegible] will be held at 10:30 o'clock, [illegible] at 2 o clock P M. Service will be [illegible] in the German language [illegible] of Mr. Gautenbein north [illegible] corner of [illegible] and C streets.

CIRCUS.—The San Francisco Circus and Palace Amphitheatre will give the last [illegible] ance this evening. They will exhibit at the following times and places: Astoria, [illegible] 28th; Vancouver, [illegible]; Hill[illegible]; Wednesday and Thursday [illegible] 30 and Oct. 1st; Oregon City, [illegible] 2d; [illegible] Saturday, 3d prox., Albany, Monday, 5th [illegible].

TEMPERANCE.—A [illegible] ing will be held at the [illegible] M under the charge of the W[illegible] League. Several gentlemen [illegible] to [illegible] on the [illegible].

Now come the City Rifles and talk [illegible] of having a target excursion.

The J street apron [illegible] Portland, has [illegible] completed down to the w[illegible].

The Gov Grover went down the river on Thursday evening with a load of grain.

The steamer Onward, after having [illegible] repairs made to her boiler, is again running.

The light draught steamer Ohio arrived [illegible] up the river yesterday morning with a [illegible] cargo.

Long strings of wagons, [illegible] with the golden cereal, are pouring into the city [illegible] day from the country.

Swinging on gates and looking [illegible] is popular just now [illegible] Moonshiny nights is the [illegible].

Several ship carpenters are still [illegible] repairing the bark Ramolino. A jib-boom will be placed in in a few days.

The members of the Legislature will fairly inundate the city to-day. The body has adjourned over till Monday afternoon.

The new Minister, Rev Mr Bentley who is to assume the pastorate of the Taylor [illegible] M E Church, is expected to arrive here in a few weeks.

A handsome little sail boat has been lying for some days on her beams end at the foot of Stark street. The owner should take better care of the craft.

Messrs R C Kinney & Sons are having an office opened down on North Front st., where they propose to establish an agency for their flouring mill and the purchase of wheat. It will be a neat and cosy office.

AMUSEMENTS.

Last evening the large circus pavilion was filled with a crowd to whom the performance gave complete satisfaction. A number of new and startling feats were introduced. New attractions are promised this evening. This evening will positively be the last exhibition, which should not be overlooked. A grand matinee at 2 o'clock when one half the usual price of admission will be charged.

The return of Madame Phelps and company to the Oro Fino Theater was the signal of a grand ovation. Almost every seat was occupied. The Manageress has in the star, Amy Stone, a trump card. The play presented for the opening was Cigarette, the Leopard of France, a military drama. We will not give a detailed description of the piece but be contented with a few remarks. The play is of a sensational character and the life and spirit of it lies in the little [illegible]. It abounds in situations of a striking nature, in each of which Amy Stone appears as the leading figure. During the play the little lady introduces drum and cornet solos and a song which are neatly executed, though we think a song with a drum accompaniment is not quite the proper thing. As both [illegible] very good this may be overlooked. In the broad sword combat with Mr Stone the lady as the Arab Boy did remarkably well and the act drew forth applause. Her dress in this character was elegant though not exactly of the pattern we have usually seen worn by persons enacting the character of an Arab. It was however modest which is in that particular all the more commendable on the part of the actress. Throughout the lady enacts her part faithfully and met with favor from the audience. Madame Phelps and the company assisted materially to make the play a success.

The piece is well mounted and ran very smoothly for the first night. It is safe to predict a good attendance during its production on at least two or three occasions. The management must feel gratified upon seeing so many present and we trust she will be [illegible] the same pleasure for nights to come. Matinee this afternoon and performance in the evening, when the same play will be produced. Mr Rob't Fulford is underlined to [illegible] on Monday evening.

LAMP CHIMNEYS—Mr Moses Seller has just received by the last steamer a lot of Dithridge Fire Proof lamp chimneys, which are the first of the kind ever brought to Portland. AMUSEMENTS.

Last evening the large circus pavilion was filled with a crowd to whom the performance gave complete satisfaction A number of new and startling feats were introduced. New attractions are promised this evening This evening will positively be the last exhibition which should not be overlooked A grand matinee at 2 o'clock when one half the usual price of admission will be charged

The return of Madame Phelps and company to the Oro Fino Theater was the signal of a grand ovation. Almost every seat was occupied. The Manageress has in the star Amy Stone, a trump card. The play presented for the opening was Cigarette the Leopard of France, a military drama We will not give a detailed description of the piece but be contented with a few remarks The play is of a sensational character and the life and spirit of it lies in the little heroine, Cigarette It abounds in situations of a striking nature in each of which Amy Stone appears as the leading figure. During the play the little lady introduces drum and cornet solos and a song which are neatly executed though we think a song with a drum accompaniment is not quite the thing As both were in themselves good this may be overlooked In the broad combat with Mr Stone the lady as the Boy did remarkably well and the act with applause Her dress in this character was elegant though not exactly of the we have usually seen worn by persons the character of an Arab It was er, modest which is in that particular all the more commendable on the part of the Throughout the lady enacts her part faithfully and met with favor from the audience. Madame Phelps and the company assisted materially to make the play a success The piece is well mounted and ran very smoothly for the first night It is safe to predict a good attendance during its production on at least two or three occasions The manage s must feel grateful upon seeing so many present, and we trust she will be afforded the same pleasure for nights to come Matinee this afternoon and performance in the evening, when the same play will be presented Mr Rob t Fulford is underlined to appear on Monday evening

COMPLIMENTARY SERENADE TO GEN HOWARD

The colored people of this city got up an impromptu affair last evening which was very admirably conducted and reflected credit upon those who arranged it We refer to the serenade of Gen. O O Howard The procession embracing nearly all the colored men in Portland headed by the City Brass Band formed at the Armory on Washington street and with the American colors flung to the breeze proceeded to the residence of the General where the Band discoursed some of their finest music General Howard came out and was introduced to the crowd by W H Hunter

A SPEECH OF WELCOME

Was made by Geo P Riley, Esq who said

General Howard The colored people of Oregon have heard of your bravery on the battle field of the Republic where the great struggle for freedom and human rights was carried on and especially of your efforts in behalf of their brethren and feeling a high sense of your moral integrity and Christian character desire to pay this compliment to you as a token of their grateful regard for your services in behalf of their liberties They bid you welcome to Oregon and trust your sojourn here will be fraught with blessings and prosperity to you and yours Thanking you for your appearance before us and for your general urbanity of manner we hope you will excuse the interruption of this hour

GEN HOWARD

Responded in a brief but very appropriate speech saying that early in life he had formed purposes he had ever since been trying to carry out and that early in the war he had thought and spoken and written to the effect that the war could not be carried on to a successful issue until the slaves were freed That when Mr Lincoln assigned him to the charge of the Freedman Bureau, at the close of the war he felt that something could be done and believes that something had been accomplished The colored people in the South were learning the art of self government and though in some parts of that country turmoil and strife still exist, in a vast proportion there was peace and order Schools had been established and industries were being started, and a bright future was ahead of these people There had been much difficulty many things wrong had been done and many misrepresentations made but much good had been accomplished He was thankful for this mark of attention and was glad to find so many colored people here who were prosperous and aiming to build up their fortunes In all his relations with them he had found them courteous and kind and as long as he lived he hoped to speak and work in behalf of their cause and their rights In conclusion he invoked Heaven s blessing upon them to encourage and prosper them and theirs and make them what they deserved to be, a happy and contented people

COMMON COUNCIL.

[ADJOURNED MEETING, SEPT 25 1874]

An adjourned meeting of the Common Council was held last evening at the Chamber

Members present—Besser Catlin Corbett Hoyt Ivon Moreland and Story

Absent—Russell and Thompson

His Honor Mayor Failing in the chair

W S Caldwell clerk and Chief Lappeus in attendance

Minutes of the last meeting read and approved

MESSAGE

The following message was read from His Honor the Mayor

To the Honorable the Common Council In my annual communication to the Council under date of July 28 last I stated in reference to the suit then pending against the Police Judge and Chief of Police that if for any cause the city should fail to recover the fees sued for that legislative aid should be invoked to remedy so gross an abuse

Since then the Supreme Court has decided that the Police Judge and Chief of Police may rightfully retain the fees earned in State cases Though I have been unable to obtain a copy of the decision as rendered by the Supreme Court it is understood that the Court decided that that portion of the charter which sought to limit the compensation of the Police Judge to a fixed salary and providing that all costs taxed and fines imposed by the said Judge should be paid into the City Treasury was defective

The amount received by the Police Judge during 18 exceeded by $4 000 the amount of salary fixed by the Charter The amount received by the Chief of Police exceeded by $1 600 the amount of compensation fixed by the Charter

I call your attention to the necessity of early considering this matter with a view of obtaining at once such legislation as may be necessary to carry into effect the evident intention of the former Legislature in endeavoring to limit the compensation of the officers named

HENRY FAILING Mayor

Indigestion lies at the root of many of the ills to which flesh is heir. It is called by many names. It leads to many other diseases. It is like the jack all which foretuns the lion Uncured of dyspepsia the victim leads a miserable and usually a short life To all who suffer thus the celebrated PLANTATION BITTERS which has a world wide fame comes with healing on its wings

Neuralgia—"Kill me—oh kill me was the cry of a wife suffering almost martyrdom from neuralgic pains in the head and face I ll do better than that replied her sympathetic husband I will buy a bottle of MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT and that will cure you—sure. The bottle was bought at the nearest drug store (for it can be found anywhere) and the Liniment was applied Within fifteen minutes the exhausted woman fell into a sweet sleep and awoke a few hours afterwards free from pain She believes in Mustang Liniment and keeps a bottle of it on her dressing table for any of her friends.

The Gorgons! were three celebrated sisters whose hairs were entwined with serpents they had wings of gold their heads were of brass their bodies covered with scales their teeth were as long as the tusks of a wild boar and they turned to stone all on whom they fixed their eyes They are mythological creations—but in these days, there may be seen some women who are regardless of their person and adornments—they allow the charms which nature accords to all their sex their hair to become dishevelled unhealthy and finally to drop out when by the use of LYON'S KATHAIRON they could retain it in all its beauty and present to their lovers and husbands the witching grace of comeliness

"Would that I had back my beauty has been the troubled exclamation of many devotees of fashion who during life s fair morning resorted to the meretricious arts of plaster and paint for the complexion What utter change comes swiftly but with nothing. SATURDAY MORNING SEPT 26, 1874

A LIGHT IN THE WINDOW

He [illegible] on through the sleet and snow with awkward and shuffling [illegible] with a certain resolution in it. Other men might have turned aside unwilling to breast the full force of such a storm, not so with Daniel Newton—Shuffling Dan, his fellow workmen called him. He was no favorite among them—silent brooding sullen fellow they thought him—but he lived a life of which they understood very little. It had been consecrated for fourteen years to one object and there was in it an element of chivalrous self sacrifice of which he was utterly unconscious himself. He passed a store where some of his comrades were laughing, then the forge with its door invitingly open and the bright red light streaming out of it cheerfully into the murky gathering night. For a moment he was tempted to go in and warm himself a little in that glow, but he shook his shaggy head and turned away. "She will be awaiting," he said as he drew up the collar of his coarse coat, "little lamb, she'll be waitin'." And then as if the thought had given new life he plodded on again more valiantly.

On through sleet and snow till he came at last in front of a square lot. A light streamed forth from its front window over the white pathway. It had shone there for him every winter nightfall for many a year and he never saw that beacon ray without blessing his little lamb over and over again. How warm she had kept his heart. And yet among the hard things in his life people who took the trouble to speak of him at all always reckoned that crippled child.

When his wife died and left him her hour old baby to bring up as best he could, they commiserated him and wondered what he was to do. And when it was found that the child would never be able to walk, they thought his burden heavier than he could bear. But he knew—only he could not have told them or reasoned about it—what has been his sweet compensation. At first to be sure it was a hard blow when he discovered that the little one he loved was never to be quite like others—that she would come toddling down the path to meet him clinging to his hard hands with rosy little fingers—but this very grief about her made his love all the [illegible].

She was the one idea of his life. The only absorbing feeling he had ever known was for her. He had liked her mother well enough but it had been an ordinary commonplace regard, until she died and left this tender blue-eyed blossom, which he was afraid to touch. The child consecrated her mother's memory and he cared for her dead more than he had ever cared for her living. But it was little Eunice who filled his heart full, and sat on her throne queen regnant forevermore. He had [illegible] nursed carefully, and he cheerfully gave up every hour of his life to the task of being father and mother to her, both in one. When she was old enough to sit a little wheeled chair in which she could trundle herself about the room his heart knew no bounds. In summer she was always at the open door to meet him and in winter her cheery lamp burned always at the cottage window.

When she was twelve years old she herself proposed to keep house for him. There were three rooms in their little cottage all on the same floor, [illegible] the unfinished garret overhead. From room to room of these three she could trundle herself around. She contrived to do a good many household tasks and with a neighbor hired to come and help each day, she managed nicely, and was the proudest of little house wives. Of late however she had been growing weaker and her father insisted that she should not be left alone at all. So the neighbor who helped her stayed all day now but went home at night when Dan came, for he was not ready to give up the pleasure of having his darling to himself in the long evenings.

Now, as he entered the yard, his steps grew quicker. All that was shuffling and uncertain passed out of his manner and he walked with the strong firm tread of one sure of his welcome. Drawing near he saw her face at the window which the light illuminated—a face of almost ideal beauty. Not the features so much, when you analyzed them they were far from regular, and bore a curious likeness to his own. But the great blue eyes were full of light, the color came and went on her in faint pink flushes and the skin was transparent as the most delicate crystal. Around the wistful loving waiting face floated a mass of soft, golden hair like the halos you see sometimes in old pictures around the brows of saints. When she saw him the blue eyes kindled then the face disappeared from the window, and when he opened the door there she was in front of it with her lips uplifted for his kiss. The neighbor stood by her things on ready to go, and it struck Dan that there was a look of pity on her face.

"You'd better not get too near the child with those wet things on," she said kindly, "she's a weak little thing and she mustn't take cold."

He started back remorseful and did not go up to the girl again until he had all his wet things off in his own room and made himself dry and tidy. By this time the neighbor was gone, and he and Eunice sat down together to the supper which awaited. He had the keen hungry appetite of a workingman but it did not keep him from noticing presently, that the food on his child's plate remained untouched. He laid down his knife and fork and looked at her anxiously.

"Ain't you going to keep your father company little dreary? You ain't never hearty I know, but I want to see you eat something."

"You know you don't let me work any more, father, and I can't get hungry like you that are busy all day, working for me."

"Yes lamb for you," he repeated as if the words gave him pleasure. "God knows it's all for you and He knows how thankful I am to have you to work for. Folks talk about my lot being hard but that's all they know. I would change places with no man. So long as He leaves me you I'll never doubt that God loves me."

The girl sighed, and a look of white pain quivered a moment about her lips.

"Take me up father," she said half an hour after as they sat beside a bright fire together. No mother's touch could have been more tender than that rough man's as he lifted the little twisted form carefully into his arms and laid the sunny head carefully against his bosom. She rested there for a while silently, looking fondly up into his face and now and then touching his cheeks gently with her thin fingers. At last she said with an air of earnestness yet slightly hesitating, "You do believe God loves you, don't you father?"

"Yes lamb, yes, so long as he leaves me you."

"But if he didn't leave me," she persisted, "wouldn't you believe that too was because he loved you?"

The man's face darkened with a sudden sick terror.

"Look here," said he in a voice of passionate entreaty, "don't talk about that, don't. It couldn't be love no way that wouldn't leave you're all I've got child—all. God don't want to take all away, does He? That ain't love."

The girl stretched her hand up and drew it around his neck and laid her face on his shoulder to hide the tears she could not keep back. But she made no answer. After awhile he asked a sudden question, breathlessly as if suspicion had pierced him with a pang too sharp to be borne.

She trembled a little but she answered quietly, "Yes father."

"And he says you're goin' does he the way your mother went? Child, don't believe him! You shan't go. My love will keep you alive. Hasn't it kept you now fourteen years? Why the doctor said you wouldn't live the first time he laid you in my arms. But you have lived and here you are and here I'll hold you. Hasn't my love kept you so long?"

"Your love and God's love, father. But what if he thinks now that it's time for me to go home."

And then they sat on silently, for a long still hour and the wood fire burned brightly and now and then a brand dropped on the hearth and that and the storm without were the only sounds which broke the stillness save when once or twice a great gasping sob tore up from Shuffling Dan's deep chest. At last he bent over and turned his girl's face toward him and looked in it with eager hungry eyes.

"It'll be a sorry world, lamb," he said, "when you're not in it—when there's nobody waitin' at the door and no light burnin' in the winder."

She looked up, her eyes full of tears.

"Father," she said gently, "don't you know you've told me sometimes how the thought that I was waitin' made it easy for you to get home, when the storms drove ever so hard and kept you from waitin' to turn into store or tavern?"

"Yes lamb, but what'll keep me on my way when you're gone?" he asked bitterly. "I thought of the time you'd said that father after Dr Peters went away to-day and I wondered if it wasn't God's love that was going to take me to the heavenly home so as to make it easier for you to come. I'll wait for you there father—and I won't be lame any more, and I'll come to meet you when you get on that threshold—as I never could here—strong and free, father, strong and free. Won't it make it easier for you to come on in spite of storms and not turn aside by the way when you know that I am waiting there just as sure as ever I waited here?"

But the father said nothing. He only held her and again [illegible] but with a grasp that almost hurt her as if to crush his pain—held her till bed time came and then carried her to her room and left her there with a long sad silent kiss. Once in a while the passion of his agony clutched him in its grasp but he suffered no sound to escape him which could reach her ears. Rigid as stone he sat before the fire and never heeded when the room grew cold, and the last brand burned out and fell into gray ashes.

After that night he never again returned to the subject. He saw that she failed every day but he could not talk about it and she understood him too well to urge him. Every day he went to his work, now was not the time to fail when she needed unwonted luxuries and might need them no one knew how long. Every night he came to her, his face pallid with apprehension. At last she grew too weak to sit up any more, and lay patiently on her little bed bearing without a moan her torturing pain, and never forgetting at night to have a light put in the window—the beacon light for the father coming home.

Just at the last, there was a time when all knew that the end was near. That week her father did not go to his work. There was money enough for all she would ever need in this world and more. So motionless except when he could do something for her comfort, he sat all day long by her pillow and watched her, save when sometimes his agony grew too mighty to be borne and he had to rush away from her out under the desolate sky where the winds were blowing, and shriek out the madness of his woe to the pitiless heavens. Eunice watched him too in her turn, with loving anxious searching gaze but she saw no hope in his face. She knew that he was hardening his heart. Then came a night at length when he was with her alone. A woman who had come to watch had fallen asleep in the other room. Dan would not wake her—he was greedy of every moment in which he could have his girl to himself. So he sat as usual looking at her silently and she as silently gazed back into his face with her great far-seeing blue eyes. At last she said:

"Then I must not wait for you there father? You won't come?"

He looked at her with a startled gaze. He had never thought of the matter in that light before. She waited a moment and then went on:

"I thought you'd want to come father. I thought you'd see how God meant to draw you to him by taking me first. And I thought I could die easy feelin' sure of your comin' and then wait for you there a little while. But you won't see God's love and you won't feel that I'm waitin'."

Something touched his heart at last—her look perhaps or her words or her tone of piteous pleading, or all three combined. He sank sobbing on his knees beside her.

"God pity me!" he gasped. "God forgive me. Wait for me there lamb, I'll come! [illegible] I'll walk in his way."

Does not my story fitly end here? Her life went out after that painlessly and quietly. Her hand was in her father's to the very last and he murmured in answer to the appeal in her dying eyes "I'll come lamb surely."

He buried his girl beside her mother but to him she is not dead. He believes with simple literal soul that God's love has given him one of the many mansions and that she waits for him there at its window, her face illuminated by a light that will never grow dim or fade away.

Wheat in Liverpool by mail advices from San Francisco 10s 2d@10s 6d for average California, and 10s 7d@11s for club.

Transactions in our local money market are unimportant, the demand for bank funds being limited. The fact that considerable money recently came here to buy wheat and deposited until such time as it is needed by agents of the firms who sent it does not actually effect our home market until the money is disbursed further than to lessen the extent of the calls upon general capital. There is a good deal of money here now upon these conditions sent here to buy grain and for no other purpose and much of the wheat already purchased has been paid for out of these special funds. Hence the demand has not nor will it probably be felt as if the wheat were largely purchased with home capital. Merchants as a rule are well supplied with funds to sustain their business and are light borrowers, improvements are not being undertaken extensively and with the ordinary or even better supply than usual in their coffers, the capitalists of Oregon are not doing an active business.

In general trade circles there is always more or less complaining done but the complaint now is not so much of dullness in trade as it is in regard to the margin for profits. The trading public it now seems, will have to bring themselves down to the basis of legitimate transactions and lower profits. The panic taught Eastern merchants this lesson a year ago, and it must be learned on this coast before we can be safely guarded against the fluctuations that are ever transpiring in the commercial world when speculation is rife and great risks are run that great profits may be made.

In a recent letter from the Superintendent of the Mint at San Francisco, to the Treasury Department he states that he is coining trade dollars at the rate of $20 000 per day which is all that can be made by ten hours work of the entire institution. When he gets into the new Mint—which he expects to do about November 1st—and gets fairly started he thinks he can make all the Trade dollars required for commercial purposes on the Pacific coast. He says the coin is a perfect success and if enough of them could be made the Mexican dollar would be entirely shut out of the market. The Trade dollar keeps up the price of crude silver and at the same time opens a very large market for silver bars.

The Grain Trade

Much interest attaches to the question whether we are to have a foreign demand for the surplus grain crop of the United States. The revival of trade in other departments depends more or less on this fact. The foreign crop reports have been closely scanned and the probable necessities of Europe and may be very closely estimated.

The American and English official reports of the wheat exports from this country for the year ending June 30 1874 have been promulgated and they afford an accurate knowledge of the trade up to the present. The entire export to all European countries of wheat and wheat flour—the flour being reduced to the grain standard for the purpose of estimate—for the past five years is as follows:

	Bushels
1870	[illegible]
1871	[illegible]
1872	[illegible]
1873	[illegible]
1874	[illegible]

The exports to the United Kingdom for the same period was

	Bushels
1870	[illegible]
1871	[illegible]
1872	[illegible]
1873	[illegible]
1874 (Approximately)	[illegible]

These tables show that our average aggregate was 17 09[illegible] bushels as against 86 [illegible] 407 last year and the average export to England has been [illegible] 918 bushels as against [illegible] 000 last year. Whether the extraordinary business of last year can be kept up is the question of particular interest. Just now the shipments from Philadelphia are extraordinarily large while those from New York are a trifle less than last year.

One of our most reliable exchanges from the East on this subject says: "That wheat will generally rule lower than in former years is already demonstrated but that the price will be seriously reduced is not apprehended. Nor should the present condition of things limit the acreage of wheat in this country as the present is regarded as an exceptional crop in Europe and may not be repeated for several years to come. Necessarily one result of this trouble will be a delay of business activity. With a sluggish market for a cereal crop we cannot anticipate any great return to active business. Caution and delay will almost necessarily result and for at least six months there will be only so much business transacted as can be done on an entirely safe basis. We would be glad to think that the era of business activity is fully at hand and while we think that slow gradual and healthy improvement will continue we cannot express hopefulness of a quick revival during the fall months as some have anticipated. We therefore advise our friends against launching into new ventures for which they are not prepared. Caution should rule in every business as the possibilities of diminished prices and trade for new wheat crop may keep up a stringent money market and weak houses and firms will be tried to the utmost of their power to resist."

Wheat

In this cereal which is the principal factor in the market there is nothing of importance to note to-day. The receipts are still quite large, the [illegible] few sales are reported. It is claimed that at not enough has been secured to place those holding ships under charter beyond any immediate press [illegible] and by the way receipts are coming to hand it looks as if sufficient would soon be in [illegible]. The receipts by several of the steamships now in port and by the boats daily are nearly 600 tons per day and the westside road is bringing in over 100 tons besides considerable quantities are being hauled in wagons from the Tualatin Plains and a large number of wagons being noticed in from that section to-day. Most of these lots however are going into storage not having yet been sold. Prices have undergone no change, the current offer being $1 40 per cental.
